Educational principles

Playing together, making things, singing, laughing, painting, strolling, romping around or just listen and being amazed. This is the lovingly small and manageable world of our day nursery.

The centre of our educational work is the child. We create a familiar and lovingly atmospheres of security and of trust which allows the child to develop its own personality.

Beside fixed times, where we occupy ourselves together specifically, the children should have much time on their own to form their independence.
